

An aerial photograph of a city, likely Oslo, Norway, with a large body of water (the fjord) in the background. The city is densely packed with buildings, and a prominent church with two spires is visible in the center. The sky is filled with large, dramatic clouds, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. The overall tone is somewhat somber and atmospheric.

Poem
If we keep emissions low

a future can form, as light as a dream
where skies remain
clear, and the rivers
still gleam

---

Where children
can play in air
that is clean and
fields will stay
fertile, bright
and green.

We learned to consume with a mindful hand not taking too much from the earth's soft land.

We sorted our waste, we gave it new life lightening the load on our planet so rife

We walked and we cycled, left cars behind and used less energy,
keeping our homes kind

---

We bought what we needed, avoided the
rest reused, recycled and
gave things a test.

The future shines
bright if we all do
our part
with mindful
choices and a conscious heart.

Thank you very much for listening.

